A Man will Chase a Nickel.

Through a set of accounts ninety days old, and raise the very old Ned to find it; and yet we know of scores of you farmers around here who have no better cover for your expensive machinery than the broad canopy of Heaven.

That sometimes leaves, you know, and then again gets sizzling hot, and the damage done by rust and decay would more than pay for enough boards to build good sheds.

Maybe it won't make any difference but we'll tell you that we sell lumber—all kinds—and will make you an estimate on anything from a little pig pen to a big house. What is it you need?

CORDELL IN TROUBLE

PROVES HIMSELF A BAD ACTOR.

Tries to Assault a Girl at Stratford and is Crippled by a Load of Buckshot.

Hubert J. Cordell, the long haired picture man, who is well known in this city, where he was convicted of stealing a watch from Matt Farrell, ran up against a girl at Stratford, and the result was that he lost his left arm. The report is that he tried to assault a girl at Stratford and that she picked up a shotgun and pulling the trigger, shot him in the arm, inflicting such a serious wound that the man had to be amputated.

The following from the Wausau Record tells of the crime and how Cordell received his deserts:

"Hubert J. Cordell of Marshfield, with a bad shotgun wound in the left arm, and charged with attempting a criminal assault upon a sixteen year old girl who successfully defended her honor with a shot gun, occupied a cell in the county jail last night, and is now at the Riverside Hospital. Upon examination it was found that his arm had to be amputated, and this was done this morning. He came thru the operation satisfactorily and at 11 o'clock was reported to be in as good condition as could be expected.

Word was received here late yesterday afternoon from Stratford stating that a tragedy had occurred, and District Attorney Genrich, Sheriff Chillis, Under Sheriff Damon and a representative of The Daily Record went to Stratford on the evening train.

Lying on a cot in the little depot, his wounds bandaged with emergency care, weak from loss of blood, and suffering from pain, was Hubert J. Cordell, charged with one of the most deliberately planned attempts to commit a criminal assault that is on the records of Marathon county.

Cordell is a solicitor for picture enlarging, and as such travels about the country among the farmers. At the home of David Reeves, about two months ago, he took an order for a picture, and six about weeks ago he took the picture out to deliver. Reeves lives about a mile and a quarter from Stratford. Payment for the work was not forthcoming so he took the picture into Stratford and left it with Peter Strachota, the proprietor of a hotel there, and gave him an order on Reeves for the amount due for the picture, in payment of a bill for the hotel. Yesterday Cordell returned to Stratford and Strachota told him the picture had not been paid for.

Cordell says that upon receiving this information he drove out to the Reeves place and found Louise Zietlow, a young girl, 16 years of age, housekeeper for Reeves, who is a bachelorette. He says he asked her if she would settle for the picture. "She said she would," continued Reeves, "and then she went into the next room. The next thing I knew, I heard a report, and felt that I had been hit. I asked her what she had done, and she said she had done nothing." Cordell gives no further details of what transpired at the house.

The story of Reeves throws more light on the details of the day. He says that about three o'clock in the afternoon he was working on his farm near the road, when he saw Cordell and a man named Robert Isbell drive by and he saw them drive by his house. The next thing he noticed was Isbell coming back alone. He stopped, and told Reeves that there was a telephone call for him at Klemme's in Stratford. Reeves asked him who it was from, and Isbell told him he didn't know, but to get in and he would drive him in. Reeves got in and when they arrived at Klemme's, Isbell got out, leaving him in the buggy, and went in. He came out immediately and told Reeves it was a mistake—it was a call for a man named Reese, who lived about three miles beyond Reeves. No one in Stratford could be found who knew of any man named Reese living anywhere about. Reeves said he rode back with Isbell, and when he got about a mile out of town, near the house of Gust Pardoe, he met Louis in the road, crying. He started to go into Pardoe's with her, and when he got about half way thru the yard it dawned on him that there must be something wrong. Isbell had started to go on, and he called to him. As soon as he called Isbell started his horse on a run toward the Reeves house. He says he followed up the road to his own home as fast as he could, and that when he got there he put a bridle on one of his horses and started up the road after Isbell. He overtook him, but as he was along in the buggy he turned around to come home again, and saw Cordell in the woods coming towards him. When Cordell saw him he turned and went back into the woods. Just then he met Al Krause of Marshfield, who was on his way home. They talked a few moments, keeping his eye on Cordell in the meantime. He says Cordell sneaked down the road to where Isbell was waiting for him, and they drove off together. He went home and found the interior of the cabin all spattered with blood.

The Plan of the Ages.
By Rev. Matt Wing at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Wing comes well recommended as master of his subject and competent to present it in an interesting, entertaining and instructive manner. Recent discoveries in regard to Radium, Electricity and Psychology have practically demonstrated the truth of revealed religion and ended "The Irresistible Conflict." If you are skeptical in regard to the nature of the soul and the future life you should hear these sermons.

Was the Piano.
The piano given away by Cohen Bros. last week was won by the Woodmen of the world, they having received a total of 8,310 votes, and the consequence is that this organization is figuring on having music at their lodge meetings hereafter.

Boxing Match.
George Lawler the Milwaukee heavyweight boxer and Joe Riley of Duluth will go 10 rounds at the opera house, Friday evening Sept. 16, tickets 50¢ and $1. There will also be a four round gal between local boys.

Fire at John Graffner's.
John Graffner's cooper shop caught fire on Monday but the flames were extinguished before any great damage was done. The fire caught from a spark from the chimney.

When he went back to find Louisa, she said she had shot Cordell with a shotgun.

The story Louisa told Reeves was that Cordell came in and shut the door closed, her around the interior of the cabin, attempting to seize her, and that when he finally got her cornered in the bedroom she seized the gun and shot him if he didn't get out she would shoot him. He continued to struggle and she pulled the trigger. Then she ran down the road and was met by Reeves and Isbell.

Isbell disappeared last night from Stratford but was arrested at Marshfield and will be brought in this afternoon.

The man Isbell has been held as an accessory and has been given a hearing, after which he was released on a bail bond of $1,500.

There were several pretty tough stories going the round of the city after Cordell's trial here, and some thought he was being imposed upon, but it is probable that they will change their mind when they hear of his latest escapade.

BALTIC FLEET SETS SAIL

Czar Sends His Entire Naval Reserve to Take Place of the Battleships Sunk by Admiral Togo.

Cronstadt, Sept. 11.—The Baltic fleet, which is to form the second Pacific squadron, started from Cronstadt to Libau and the orient to-day.

The vessels of the fleet are as follows: The battleship Savoaroff, Vice Admiral Rojstyshevsky's flagship; the Navarria Sissoi, Volodya Borodino, Alexander III, Orel, Olog, and the Oslavya, Rear Admiral Voikovskaya's flag ship; the cruisers Admiral Nachimoff, Omitoff, Aurora, Aurora and the Alman, Rear Admiral Enquist's flag ship; and several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

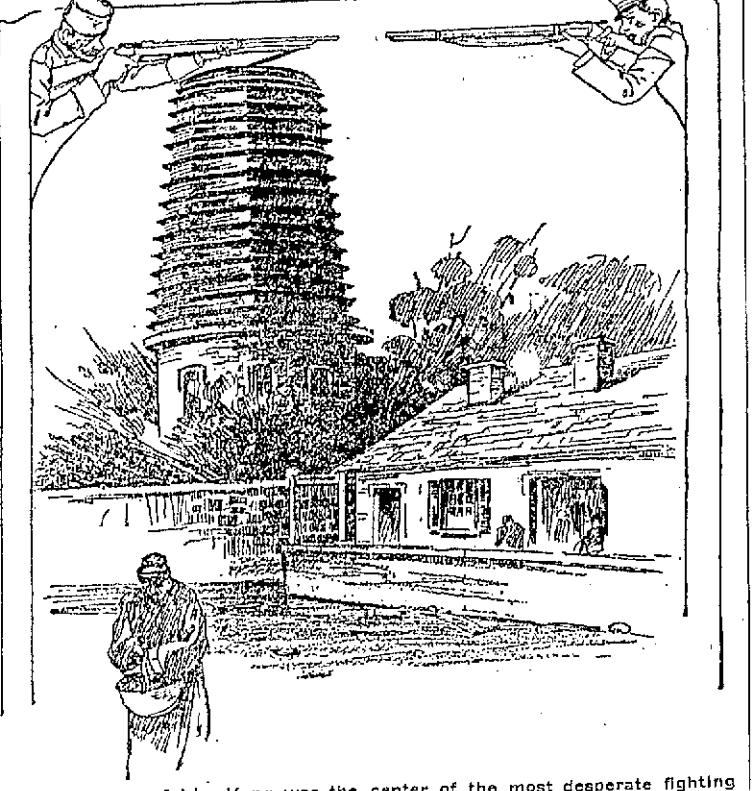

The fleet will merely touch at Libau, where it will be joined by twelve transports, colliers and supply ships already awaiting there, and will then proceed direct to the orient.

Baltic Fleet May Be of Little Use on Arrival

London, Sept. 12.—The situation at Port Arthur, especially in view of the sailing from Cronstadt on Sunday of the Baltic fleet, receives renewed attention in the newspapers.

TOWER IN LIAO-YANG, USED AS A CHURCH, WHERE THE MOST DESPERATE FIGHTING HAS OCCURRED.

The tower of Liao-Yang was the center of the most desperate fighting ever recorded in the history of the world. Here for eight days the battle raged with 200,000 Russians determined to hold the Chinese stronghold.

The tower is outside the walls of the city and is used for religious purposes.

NO LONGER ALL SENTIMENT.

Southern Misses Now Article of Commerce.

Poets have written fittingly about the long gray leviathons of Spanish moss, word painters have told how it seemed to mourn over the solitary graves in southern woodlands, tourists have strained after sentimental phrases to express the feelings the sight of great oaks draped with it evoked.

The status of the Filipinos, the President declares, is now of the best, and the idea of the withdrawal of the Americans from the Islands is scouted.

In conclusion, the policy of the Republican party on national questions is declared to be the only safe procedure, and the President, for the party, declares his willingness to leave the verdict to the judgment of the American people.

NOT MUCH OF Importance

The last of the Russian rear guard has succeeded in crossing the Hun river and are prepared to make a stand there to check the advance of the Japanese center. The flanking columns of Oki and Kuroki are well to the north of the river, but their efforts to cut the Russian line of retreat have, up to this time, been unavailing.

Gen. Meyendorff, commander of the Russian rear guard, was nearly cut to pieces before he succeeded in crossing the Hun and his losses are reported to have been less than 5,000 or 6,000 men since the retreat began.

It is reported that a number of regiments engaged in the fighting about Liao-ying have been sent south to assist in the reduction of Port Arthur, and from this it is deduced that Marshal Okuma does not intend to make a determined effort to oust the Russians from Liao-ying for some time, at least.

The Chunchuses have been extremely active and have succeeded in giving the Russians a good deal of trouble by their swift dashes on the commissary trains. They are reported to have captured considerable quantities of stores during the retreat and have not hesitated to attack small bodies of Russians. In many of these attacks they have been successful.

They take no prisoners. The ranks of the Chunchuses have been constantly increased by men whose homes and property have been destroyed by the operations of the army.

The sweeping mass of the southern forests is linked with commerce. It fills mattresses for beds and cushions for buggies. It is useful for packing and it is gathered by people who are paid by the day. Moss is glued as cotton is ginned; the outer cuticle of the fiber is removed and leaves it much like horse hair. It is then good for anything that needs stuffing. In Louisiana, instead of merely a detail of swamp scenery, it is the basis of an industry. Bales of it are known as part of the Louisiana forestry display.

It still waves in the Gulf breezes where it is unmolested, and the mocking bird, perhaps, veils itself from the moonlight behind it as it trills out its full notes to its mate; it still gives that funeral aspect to the banks of hundreds of miles of bayous and makes distinct from any other landscape in the world the scenery of our southern states.

But the utilitarian eye sees in it only so many bales at so much per bale, f. o. b., delivered at northern furniture factories.

A Popular Ticket.

The nomination of George W. Peck and Dr. H. A. Lathrop for governor and lieutenant governor seems to have struck a popular chord with the people of the state of Wisconsin. And there is no reason why it should not be so. Mr. Peck has a record such as the common person likes to see. He has demonstrated that he is a man that the ordinary man may bank on and not be disappointed, while the present incumbent of the office has nothing to show for the four years that he has been at the head of the administration. He has made lots of promises in the past and he is still making them. Nothing came of his promises in the past, during the four years he was in office, and there is no reason to suppose that anything will come of them in the next two years, provided the people of the state see fit to elect him to the office of governor.

The excuse that is made for him in the past is that he has not had the support of the legislature during the time of his administration. When Peck was in office he got the support of all honest people and did not have any trouble in doing it, either. LaFollette may be sincere in his claims; there is no way of finding out, but to an outsider it looks very much as if he was working for little Bob, and nobody else. He tried for years to get the office before he did get it, and since his first election he has expended all of his energies in trying to retain it. This is the way of all professional politicians. It was not a case of the office seeking the man, but the man has strenuously sought the office, and is still seeking with might and main.

With Peck it is different. He has never sought office from the people, but when it was tendered him he has accepted it and when elected he has gone on and done his duty as any true American citizen should.

It would seem as if it would be not take long for any man of ordinary intelligence to size up the two men at their proper worth and choose accordingly. LaFollette can probably put up as good a game of talk as any man in the state, and it must be this fact that has caught the people, for he has never done anything.

So far as platform and political issues are concerned, they cut but little figure in state politics. What difference does it make what the views of a governor are on the silver question, the matter of tariff reform, or the question of a ship subsidy bill? They have nothing to do with those matters. What the people of the state want is a man in the executive chair who will give them a business administration; one who will not surround himself with a lot of apopositive officers whose sole duty is to look after caucuses and conventions in the early districts, while the governor is making speeches the entire term of his office, all of which consist in telling the people what he and his administration have done for them.

It is easy to find men who are honest in their convictions and who believe that the affairs of the state should be looked after in a business manner. Stop the first man you meet on the street and lead him up to the subject gradually and you will find that he believes in an economical administration, so that the mere preaching of economy does not show that he is anything of a phenomenon. What we want is men who will do things; men who will practice what they preach; that is what counts. It would seem as if the people of Wisconsin had seen enough abuse of the public offices of the state so that they would want a change, and now that they have the chance to bring about that change there is no reason why they should not take advantage of the chance.

With Peck and Lathrop in charge of the affairs of the state there is no reason why we should not have a business administration once again. Both men have demonstrated their ability to make a success of a business proposition, and as neither of them are professional office holders or office seekers, there is no question but what the abuses that have sprung up in the state's affairs will be abolished.

Following is a short sketch of the nominees on the state ticket:

George W. Peck served as governor of the state from 1891 to 1895, and for a long time has been well known in the state. He was born in Henderson, N. Y., September 28, 1840, was a printer in early life, and during the war served in the Fourth Wisconsin cavalry. In 1866 he started a paper at Ripon, later became owner of the La Crosse Democrat and in 1874 founded Peck's Sun, which he moved to Milwaukee, and in which his "Peck's Bad Boy" sketches appeared. Mr. Peck was mayor of Milwaukee in 1890-1.

Dr. Henry A. Lathrop, nominee for lieutenant governor, is a practicing physician at Marshfield, and owns a large stock farm. He was elected to the assembly in 1888, defeating Robert Connor, father of W. D. Connor, chairman of the republican state central committee.

James P. Nolan of Manitowoc, candidate for secretary of state, is owner of an abstract and loan office. He has had no office other than that of county clerk and school director.

Andrew Jensen of Edgerton, candidate for state treasurer, is one of the best known democrats in southern Wisconsin. He has been mayor of Edgerton, president of a bank, a big tobacco buyer and a well known Lutheran.

Henry Fetzer of Sturgeon Bay, candidate for insurance commissioner, is a well known insurance agent. He is president of the State Insurance Agent association.

Edward L. Hutton of Superior, candidate for railroad commissioner, was born near LaCrosse forty-five years ago. He has been a member of common council of Superior and of the county board of Douglas county. He has been an attendant at the various democratic conventions for years and has always taken an active part in campaigns.

Ruggles for Congress.

At the democratic congressional convention held at Merrill on Saturday last Wells M. Ruggles of Ashland was nominated for congress in the 10th district. The only other candidate in the field was Rulley Cole, who received only five votes in the convention.

The delegates from this city were D. D. Conway, Dr. Chas. Pommerville and W. A. Drumb, and M. G. Fleckenstein was present from Marshfield. D. D. Conway was elected chairman of the convention.

Wells M. Ruggles, the nominee, is an attorney at Ashland, and after his nomination addressed the convention at some length. He proved himself to be a forcible and convincing speaker, and has had enough experience so that he should prove a good campaigner. The democrats of the tenth district seem to be pretty generally pleased with the choice of the convention, and there is no question but what if Mr. Ruggles is elected he will make a good representative.

Notice is hereby given that a county convention of the Democratic party in the county of Wood and state of Wisconsin, will be held in the City hall at the City of Marshfield, in said county and state on the 29th day of September, 1904, at 10:30 a. m., as determined by the county committee to nominate candidates for the following offices to be elected at the ensuing general election, viz: Member of Assembly for Wood County Assembly District, Sheriff, County Clerk, Treasurer, Register of Deeds, Clerk of Circuit Court, District Attorney, Surveyor, Superintendent of Schools, Coroner, for the County of Wood.

Notice is hereby further given that the caucuses of said party of the several wards, towns and villages of said county to elect delegates to the said county convention, above mentioned, will be held on the 26th day of September A. D. 1904 from 7:00 to 8:00 o'clock p. m., at the places designated below, respectively, to choose the number of delegates to said county convention as determined by the county committee as follows:

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas.

"I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took nothing but medicines before getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy.

After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." Otto's Pharmacy.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bodden, alone and destitute. Such is brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Verdi, O. For years he was troubled with kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies: "I am on the road to complete recovery." See our article concerning any of these lines.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to occur and usually so severely that digestion has been suspended by constipation. Eat slow and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Only 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles at Sam Church and John E. Daly druggist.

Following is a short sketch of the nominees on the state ticket:

Memo to The Constitution.
(From Judge Abbot B. Parker's address of acceptance—August 10th, 1904.)

It becomes desirable to call attention to the fact that the people, in whom all power resides, have seen fit, through the medium of the Constitution, to limit the governmental power conferred and to say to departments created by it: "Thus far shalt thou go and no further." To secure the ends sought the people have by the Constitution separated and distributed among the three departments of government—the executive, legislative and judicial—certain powers, and it is the duty of those administering each department so to act as to preserve, rather than to destroy, the potency of the co-ordinate branches of the government, and thus secure the exercise of all the powers conferred by the people.

Thomas Jefferson, in letter to William C. Jarvis, touching the perpetuity of our institutions, written many years after he had retired to private life, said: "If the three powers of our government maintain their mutual independence of each other, it may last long, but not so long as either can assume the authority of the other." It must be confessed that in the course of our history executives have employed powers not belonging to them; statesmen have been passed that were expressly forbidden by the constitution, and statutes have been set aside as unconstitutional when it was difficult to point out the provisions said to be offended against in their enactment; all this has been done with a good purpose, no doubt, but in disregard, nevertheless, of the fact that ours is a government of laws, not of men, deriving its "just powers from the consent of the governed." If we would have our government continue during the ages to come, for the benefit of those who shall succeed us, we must ever be on our guard against the danger of usurpation of that authority which resides in the whole people.

The rumors concerning crooked work in the state house are flying around thick and fast. The things told are not all based on rumor. Some ugly facts come to light now and then, things that no honest man would do. There is no doubt in the mind of any person who has heard these rumors or who is conversant with affairs in the capitol that there is "something rotten in Denmark." State expenses have increased to an alarming extent. State employees are neglecting their duties and spending their time working politics. The governor sets the example by remaining away from his office more than half the time. There is no head, no method, no system to the state government. Everything is done in the loose way it can be done. Jobs are created and doled out to political favorites who are attracted to the governor like flies to a magnet. The worst of all is that it is utterly impossible for any person seeking information on the affairs of state to get at the facts. Records of money expended are incomplete. The sums spent are obtainable, but the purpose for which they were used is not. To illustrate—The Sentinel a few days ago published facts showing the purchase of $100 worth of postage stamps. The record of this transaction does not show the name of either the post office at which or the postmaster from whom they were purchased. All the record shows is that one clerk paid out $100 for postage stamps and another received for this amount of stamps. It may be that the transaction was honest, but the manner in which it was conducted gives one the impression that it was not. At any rate, the record is not such as one would expect to find in a public office.

The Kimball and Hallett & Davis Pianos are just as good instruments as you can buy, no matter how much you care to pay. We will put them in a contest of merit with any piano on the market.

There is a certain quality—peculiar to the tone of fine pianos, that stirs the imagination.

The Kimball has the power to charm. Its tone is sympathetic and brilliant; the ideal instrument for music loving homes. In tone, action, durability and finish, it fulfills the demands of the most exacting critic. If you contemplate the purchase of a piano, why not call and look into the merits of our goods.

Our prices and terms will surely please you. We can and will save you fifty dollars on a piano.

The Kimball piano is now in use in the homes of many of the best people in Grand Rapids.

We will, with pleasure, refer you to our Kimball customers. We also have a Kimball Piano Player for sale. This is strictly a one price piano house. Every piano is marked in plain figures, and all pay the same price without any deviations. This is our motto and we propose to stand by it.

CRANBERRY PICKERS.

More than Three Hundred Leaves Stevens Point for the Marshes.

Stevens Point Journal.—It will probably surprise the general public in Stevens Point to know that more than three hundred men, women and children have left the city over the Green Bay & Western for the cranberry marshes in the vicinity of Grand Rapids. This is true and another lot is to be sent from here.

They are usually hired by some persons acting as local agents for owners of the marshes and are sent forward in parties of from 50 to 100.

The owners pay their railroad fare both ways. They also furnish shanties for the people to live in. These are supplied with stoves but the pickers furnish their own food and bedding.

The price paid for picking ranges from 50 to 75 cents per bushel, depending somewhat upon the yield and other conditions on the marshes.

Youth and Cupid

Oh, none so bright! Oh, none so bright!
Oh, none so bright as I!
If Cupid dares within my sight,
Within my light to fly,
He'll sing his wings, and then for spite
Desire his like to die!

I only laugh, laugh at his plight.
And unredenting cry
"It serves you right! It serves you right!"
And "I am no use to wish,
For though you sing your wings to night,
Again you'll venture nigh!"

How to Catch Rattler

It isn't everybody who knows how to catch a rattlesnake, even should he have sudden occasion to put such knowledge in practice. The first indication of the presence of a rattle is the sharp, unmistakable rattle. The rattle is the fairest fighter of all living creatures, never failing to give due warning of its hostile intent. Bending low and gazing among the shrubs, the dangerous one may be spied. He is curled on himself like a spiral spring, his head flat and triangular, and a fourth of his body raised out of the circles of coils and bent into the shape of a horizontal S, ready to strike with lightning rapidity. The eyes are black and cold as the vipers; the lips are like a tease spring, alert and ready to bite its long, needle-like fangs and to inject the frightful poison.

If the intruder is without striking distance and remains where he is he is in little danger, as only in the rarest cases have the snakes been known to attack and assume the initiative.

If the hunter withdraws, gradually the viper assumes a position of repose, which it maintains until again threatened. But to the snake catcher the threat of the rattle is not a serious deterrent. He knows the creature can strike only within a radius of about one-half its length. Having struck, it must recoil and after a second time before it can send out its hideous head. A six-foot stick is all that is necessary to catch the formidable snake. Pushing the end of the stick toward the reptile, the hunter watches his chance. The rattle is motionless, as if carved out of stone, only its deadly, eyeless eyes fastened upon the end of the stick to await the precious moment to bite. When that comes there is a movement too quick for the eye to follow, and the long fangs are sunk into the stick, while the reptile, realizing his mistake at once, is already coiled up and again in a lighting attitude.

Before it can strike down comes the pain, pinching the long, squirming body to the ground, and the hunter walks boldly toward the helpless one, takes it up close behind the head, where the poison fangs cannot reach him, and puts his captive into a jar.

There are many other methods of catching the rattlesnake, for instance, when the rattle is in its winter quarters and lethargic and lazy. Just the manner described is the way the professional snake catcher secures his specimens.—Chicago Chronicle.

Miss Hapgood tells how she escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MISS HAPGOOD.—"I suffered for four years with what the doctors called appendicitis, but I could not stand it any longer, and had to undergo an operation. I had to have a large incision made in my abdomen, and the doctor had to cut through the bowel. If I had not been a year and a half before I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I would have suffered a long, slow, painful, and protracted convalescence, and the doctor would not have been able to get me out of bed again."

THE story of the people she helped, out there in the wild west country, is exciting, amazing and mighty.

The ladies of the Congregational church will serve dinner on the church lawn, next Street fair day, September 17.

Mrs. J. Gutheil returned home Tuesday morning after a three months tour in Europe. She reports a very pleasant trip.

An Editor's Opinion.

Our readers will be interested in the statement by Mr. John Edmunds, editor of the Daily and Weekly Courier at Lincoln, Ill. He says: "I have long been a advocate of constitutional castigation and have used Re-Co Toile Laxative Syrup. I found it an agreeable medicine and just the thing for men engaged in sedentary pursuits. Take pleasure in recommending Re-Co Toile Laxative Syrup as safe and effective, without any griping or constipating effects common to similar remedies." 25c. See and $1.00 bottles sold by Sam Church and John E. Daily druggist.

SIGEL.

The frost did not kill the corn and there are hopes that it will become ripe. Potatoes yield good and are of good quality, small grain is about one half crop. All those who have had animals for sale find the market rather dull.

Clara Yusko left last week for Stevens Point to attend the Business College.

A large conourse of people attended the funeral of Mrs. Worland last Thursday. There were nearly 40 teams in line.

Frank Luckock and family and Peter Schmitz and wife were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fins last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Fins is making preparations for the erection of a new barn and stable.

Have you got some large pumpkins, melons, squashes or something of extra fine quality? If so, remember to bring them to the Adams Co. fair, Sept. 27, 28 and 29.

RUDOLPH.

Died, September 6th, 1904, Iva May Pickett, of consumption, at the age of 20 years, 18 days. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Pickett, who with sorrowing sisters and brothers are left to mourn her loss. She was a loving daughter and sister, and had a quiet way and gentle smile which won the hearts of all that knew her. The funeral was held at the house on Sept. 7th. The many friends who attended the funeral felt the deep sorrow which comes with the severing of tender ties of relationship, and a large number of neighbors and friends who after a short acquaintance had learned to love the departed one for those excellent qualities of mind and heart showed their affection in profuse floral offerings. At the grave many had a throbbing heart and tearful eyes as they watched the laying to rest of the loved one.

Our golden circle is broken.

Our loved one has passed away;

Our hearts are sad and lonely.

Since God took Iva away.

Mamie Livermore is under Dr. Jackson's care again.

The many friends of Simon Justin are glad to hear that he is recovering from an attack of peritonitis.

Bert Chamberlain of Necedah, while visiting with relatives at Nekoosa, came here to see his old chums, P. M. Logan and H. L. Freeman.

C. O. Hassel is loading rock at the burg for the Consolidated Co. at Grand Rapids.

A few of the farmers shipped a carload of stock from this burg on Tuesday. If a little more of that kind of business was done it would be better for all concerned.

Mrs. Andrew Sharpe is visiting her old home at Monroe this week.

Mrs. Frank Hornum is on the sick list but is better at this writing.

Albert Tomeczk brought with him from Sigel a bouquet of apple blossoms. On Mr. Klappa's farm there are two apple trees that are full of blossoms and they are quite a curiosity.

Emergency Medicines.

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household remedy is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut or bruise or burn it relieves the pain and causes the injury to heal faster than any other remedy. It is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a quick recovery.
